Project Description

Wolf Trap National Park was established in 1966 as the only national park for the performing arts, and fifty years later, it remains unique. Founded by Mrs. Catherine Filene Shouse, who donated land and funds for the park, the centerpiece is the Filene Center, a 7000-seat outdoor performance venue set among woods and meadows. With both traditional seating and lawn seating, picnicking and concerts under the stars at the Filene Center are a summer tradition, where shows are offered ranging from symphonies to dance to jazz to rock and the latest pop stars. The park also offers a summer Children's Theatre-in-the-Woods performance series and tours of the Filene Center, while outdoor activities like hiking, picnicking, and sledding are available year-round.

Written content about how the park came to be is needed for our website.
